Hongkong, November 6th, 1880.

'In 'yesterday's issue we published a short article from the Indian Daily News on the seat of Government in China, which contained some very sensible remarks upon the unsuitability, from its position, of Peking as the metropolis of the Chinese Empire. There can be no possible doubt in the minds of all outsiders that Peking as a capital is most unfavourably situated, both from a strategic | Ulcers and other sores are often found on the and from a political point of view. It is foot; frequently, too, a large piece of flesh close to the frontier on the far north; is, as our Calcutta contemporary points out, too near the coast to be able long to make a successful resistance to a well organised invading expedition; and is too remote from the southern and western provinces for the Imperial authority to be effectively exercised and for about two years the foot aches continually, there. There is really no valid reason why the seat of Government should not be changed and if the Chinese Government are wise they will seriously consider the propriety of transwerring it to some more central position and one that is at the same time less open to attack from abroad. 'Peking' has ever since the year 1421, when Yung Lo, the third Emperor of the Ming dynasty, removed his Court thither, been the permanent capital. and there is no doubt the Mongoland Tartar dynastics have always entertained a prejudice (Hearing).

IN BANKRUPTCT (in the Registrar's Office, at 11 in its favour. The Manchu rulers have, it o'clock)—In the matter of J. M. Peking, the Yangtsze being navigable for the largest men-of-war up to it, and it could not be easily defended without a powerful fleet. The city of Wu-chang, which is much further inland, being over five hundred miles up the river, almost in the core of the Central Kingdom, would be a fine site for the metropolis. It is, however, very unlikely that the Manchu Government will ever of their own accord migrate south. When the Allies at tacked and took Peking in 1860 the Emperor and Court fled to Johol, in Manchuria, and it is evident that the country is still regarded by the Manchus as a place of retreat when danger menaces Peking . But in the case of Russia proving an avowed foe to China, matters would assume a different aspect, for Russian territory borders on Manchuria and the latter would be exposed to attack by the Czar's legions: Moreover, in the event of Russia ever taking possession of Corea-which country she is known to set covetous eves upon-Peking would be practically under the Muscovite thumb. Recent events have, we believe, inspired at Peking a senso of insecurity which might eventually perhaps lead to its abandonment as the capital, should war be declared against China by the St. Petersburg mijust or not we are unable to say. A telegram in The Times, dated St. Petersburg September 19th, days :- "M. Bützoff, the Russian Envoy to China, will sail from Marseilles in about a fortnight. He had intended making a somewhat protracted stay in Switzerland before setting out for Poking, but has been requested to accele rate his departure."-Nothing is said about the movements of Morquis Tseng, but he would probably return to England after the departure of the Russian Envoy for China.

A few nights ago a sentry on guard at the Ol Magazine saw a Chinaman prowling about in the small bours, and on going towards him the awaiting trial for the murder Celestial had the temerity to throw a brick at him, which struck his rifle, and then make off the soldier says he was near enough to the man to recognise him if he saw him again. of the 20th September :- "The binding of the feet is not began till the child has learnt to walk and do various things. The bandages are specially manufactured, and are about 2in wide and two yards long for the first, five yards long for sub sement years. The end of the strip is laid o the inside of the foot at the instep, then curried over the toes, under the foot and mund the heel the toos being thus drawn towards and over the sole, while a bulge is produced on the instep and a deep indentation in the sole. The indentation it is considered, should measure about an incl and a half from the part of the foot that rests on the ground up to the instan. Successive layers of bandages are used till the strip is all used, and the end is then sewn tightly down The foot is so squeezed upward that, in walking only the ball of the great toe touches the ground Large quantities of powdered alum are used to prevent ulceration and lessen the offensive odour After a month the foot is put in het water to soak some time; then the handage is carefull unwound, much dead cuticle coming off with i slengths off the sole, and one or two toes may even drop off, in which case the woman feels afterwards repaid by having smaller and more delicate feet. Each time the bandage is taken off the foot is kneeded, to make the joints more flexible, and is then bound up again as quickly as possible with a fresh bandage, which is draw up more tightly. During the first year the pain isso intense that the sufferer can do nothing, and is the seat of a pain which is like the pricking of sharp needles. With continued rigorous binding, the foot in two years becomes dead and the preceding case. ceases to ache, and the whole leg, from the knee downward, becomes shrunk, so as to be little more than skin and bone. TRACEDY IN MAUAO.

The uneventfultenour of life in the neighbouring Colony of Macao has been disturbed by a tragedy which has come like a shock upon that quiet community, Major Beja, the Commandant of the European Battalion there, having fallen a victim to a most determined attempt on his life by one of the soldiers of the Garrison. It apnears that the Commandant had occasion to unish this man ashort time ago, and gave him fifteen days' imprisonment for "sleeping on duty." This sentence seems to have rankled in the man's breast, whether because he thought it day night, however, when on sentry duty at the him his musket, scaled the wall of the officers' quarters, and made his way, to those of the Combers between tuelve and one o'clock by hearing i some one trying to force an entrance into his room. Rising from bished he took a revolver and opened the door, demanding to know who was there. The Japan Mail. goldier, who had made ready, fired, and wounded the Major in the arm. The latter replied with his revolver, but missed his assailant, and on trying to fire a second time the weapon missed fire. By this time the assassin was ready and fired second time at the Commandant, indicting fatal wound. The unfortunate officer's wife, who had vainly endervoured to stay the murderer's hand, was now threatened by theruffian, who demanded all the money she had. She handed him' ten dollars, and he left the place at full speed, The sentry saw him passing the Barracks, challenged him, and fired, but missed. The murderer having got clear of this danger, appears to have gone in search of the two Sergeants who had given evidence against him for neglect of duty. but, finding that he could not gain admission and that his pursuers were on his track, he abandoned his intention and fled into the city. He was, however, diligently sought for, and discovered asleep between two and three o'clock yesterday morning in a Chinese brothel. When arrested. he denied his guilt at first, but subsequently confessed that he originally intended to kill Captain. Almeida, but as that officer, fortunately for him,

THE DARIEN CANAL.

Mr. Joseph Nimmo, jun., the Chief of the United States Bureau of Statistics, has made a report to the Secretary of the Treasury on the Ngai Ang was fined 10 cents for being at large possible effects on American commerce, and the following is a summary of his conclusions :pass through the proposed American Inter-Oceanic Canal would amount to about 1,500 vessels. or 1,625,000 tons snauslly.

"7.—That there is now a large and growing commerce between the Pacific ports of the United States and interior points east of the Rocky Mountains. The proposed canal would not pra-sent any direct competition to this trade between interior points in the United States and ports on the Pacific coast. "8.—That the commerce between the Pacific ports of the United States and Europe would probably seek the passage through the proposed canal in storm vessels.

. "9.—That the magnitude of the commerce the countries on the western coast of South Americals limited by that most marked orological feature of the continent, the Andean range, extending from the Isthmus of Panama to the Straits of Magellan, and also by conditions of climate and soil hereinbefore described. Major Beja was roused from his slum- ourriages. An experiment made at Tekio, re- to San Francisco, and thence overland by rail. "13.—That, on account of the nautical conditions involved in the passage through the proposed canal, sailing vessels, engaged in trade between the Atlantic sea board of the United States and Australia and New Zealand will probably continue to pursue either the passage around Cape Horn or the passage around the Cape of Good Hope. "In obtaining these facts he furnishes some interesting data. The commercial utility the canal with respect to the Atlantic and ports of the United States is practically limited to trade east of the 110th meridian of longitude east of Greenwich. This is so, he thinks, because the consideration of distance would prevent vessels between Africa, Asia, and Aus tralia and vessels between the Atlantic and Gulf ports of the United States and Europe. Africa, and almost all of Asia, except China and Jopan, from passing wid the canal. About 34 per cent, of the shipping in the China and Japan trade with the Atlantic ports of the United States now seeks the Suez Canal route, or 11.796 miles. By the American canal from New York to Hongkong it would be 558 miles shorter, ve

Mr. Nimmo does not believe that passage would in be sought by the new route, unless it should be quite as favourable as Suez with respect to facilities for transit and coaling, which he doubts. as also whether the nautical conditions would be as favourable. The transportation of wheat be comes a very important item in this connexion. and two questions are suggested. First, whether sailing vessels with wheat would be likely to take that route; second, whether steam vessels would not supersede sailing vessels in the wheat trade. At a low tell Mr. Nimmo's information is that steamers might take that route, yet he has also assurances that California wheat being of a hard, flinty nature, it would not pay to take it through the canal at $1 a ton. The South American trade has already been referred to. Comparing the commercial aspects of the Suez and American consist more closely, and recapitalating in part in order to show their relative importance. Mr. Nimmo points out precisely how far commercial possibilities have been realized in practice. There might have passed through Suez in 1878 tonnage amounting to 6,313.742. 3,291,585 tons did pass through. On the same basis of calculation there might pass through the American canal 2,933,386 tons, but it would more likely be 1,625,000. The cost of the Suez Canal was $92,273,907. The receipts last year on 3,236,942 tons were $5,973,186, and the errenditures, including 5 per cent. interest upon the share capital as sinking fund, were $5.415.542. leaving a balance of $557,645. BUSSIA AND MERV.

The Gales, received this morning, contains a ong article on the Mery question, deprecating the silence of the Russian Government, and the impending occupation of the cases by General Skobeleff. "The preparations for the march of our troops from Bami to Gook Tepe, where the Tokko host is gothered," it says, "constitute an extremely difficult duty. Two questions arise in connection with it: do we mean to occupy Geok Tope only, or do we mean to push further on to Mery, as asserted by the newspapers abroad? Regretably, notwithstanding that it is now the second year that the Russian troops are undertaking a distant expedition into the heart of the Akhel Tekke onsis, the final nim of the military operations remains a close official secret. Every one answers the question of Skobeleff's aim according to his fancy, and the English public, re lying upon the reports of the Russian Fress. assums quite a hostile tone. To the question as to what Russia gains by such secrecy it is difficult to give a satisfactory answer, nor is it possible to define the recompense she is to obtain for her large and costly outlay of roubles and blood. While admitting that Russia's offorts ought to be expended in developing her own resources, we caunot but recognise that necessity impels her to a pacification of the region lying within the triangle formed by Krasknevodsk, Tchikidlar, and Bami. To quell the steppe robbers once for all, it is absolutely indispossable to crush their gathered strength at Geok Tepe. In a word, year ago by the Rooski Invalide-to pacify the ranscaspion Steppes and protect the commercial highway running between Krasnovodsk and Khiva. A year ago the necessity was insisted upon for a Russian advance upon Merv as a counterpoise to the English successes in Afghau-Il to day the English are retiring humiliated from their conquests such a reason no longer possesses weight. On our side it would, indeed, he unadvisable to undertake distant conquests involving loss of money and inreased political difficulties. HOIST WITH HIS OWN PETARD. During the maleficent existence of the lately disestablished "Third Section" the Russian postmasters had a right of opening any letters which they regarded as suspicious, in order that they might be forwarded, if the suspicions proved to be well-grounded, to the Secret Chancery of the Third Section. The new monthly number of the St. Petersburg Russkaja Stardina ("Russian Antiquity") relates as anecdote of the famous poet A. S. Puschkin, one of whose private letters to his wife was opened by the Mosoow Postmaster Bulgakoff. The poet's wife was staying at the time in Messew, and Puschkin's letter to her contained some very uncomplimentary remarks upon the Czar Nicholas. When Bulgakoff had read the poet's letter he despatched it straightway to Count Benkendorf. the chief of the Third Section. This official handed the letter to his secretary. Miller, for further official handling. Miller happened to be a passionate admirer of the poet's works, and he hurried off with the letter, in great alirm, to M D. He advised Miller to tell his chief that Puschkin's letter bud unhappily got amountst a number of papers which were to be burned, and had perished amongst them. Miller consented to resort to this untruth in order to save the poet, and Miller took the letter to Puschkin himself A few days later the grateful poet went to his friend and showed him the copy of a second letter which he had sent to his wife. In it he warned her to be careful, since everything she wrote to him would be read by "that rascal Bulgakoff." who would probably send bor latter to the secret Bulgakoff's not very reputable manuer of life. 'Now we shall see," said Puschkin, "whether Bulgakott will send this letter to the secret police!" Bulgakoff opmed Puschkin's letter, as was afterwards discovered, but when he had read ita contents he sealed it up again, taking good care that its revelations concerning himself should not get into the hands of the Phird Sec-
